

Employee recruitment

-NILAM SANGROULA

Concept of recruitment

- ▶ Recruitment is the process that brings employees and employers together.
- ▶ It is the process of finding out right people for the right positions at the right time.
- ▶ So, it is an important part of the acquisition aspects of human resource management.
- ▶ It is concerned with identifying and attracting a pool of qualified candidates to fulfill human resource needs of an organization.
- ▶ On the other side, identifying and attracting the candidates depends on the quality of the recruits.

Definitions

- ▶ According to Edwin B. Flippo, “Recruitment is the process of searching for prospective employee and stimulating them to apply for jobs in the organization.”
- ▶ According to DeCenzo and Robbins, “Recruitment is the process of discovering potential candidates for actual or anticipated organizational vacancies. Or from another perspective, it is a linking activity—bringing together those with jobs to fill and those seeking jobs.”
- ▶ According to Wendell French, “Recruitment is the process of finding qualified people and encouraging them to apply for work with the firm.”
- ▶ According to Ivancevich and Glueck, “Recruitment is the set of activities that an organization uses to attract job candidates who have the abilities and attitude needed to help the organization achieve its objectives.”
- ▶ However; Robert Heller explained that if people of poor caliber are hired, nothing much else can be accomplished, the bad people drive out the good.

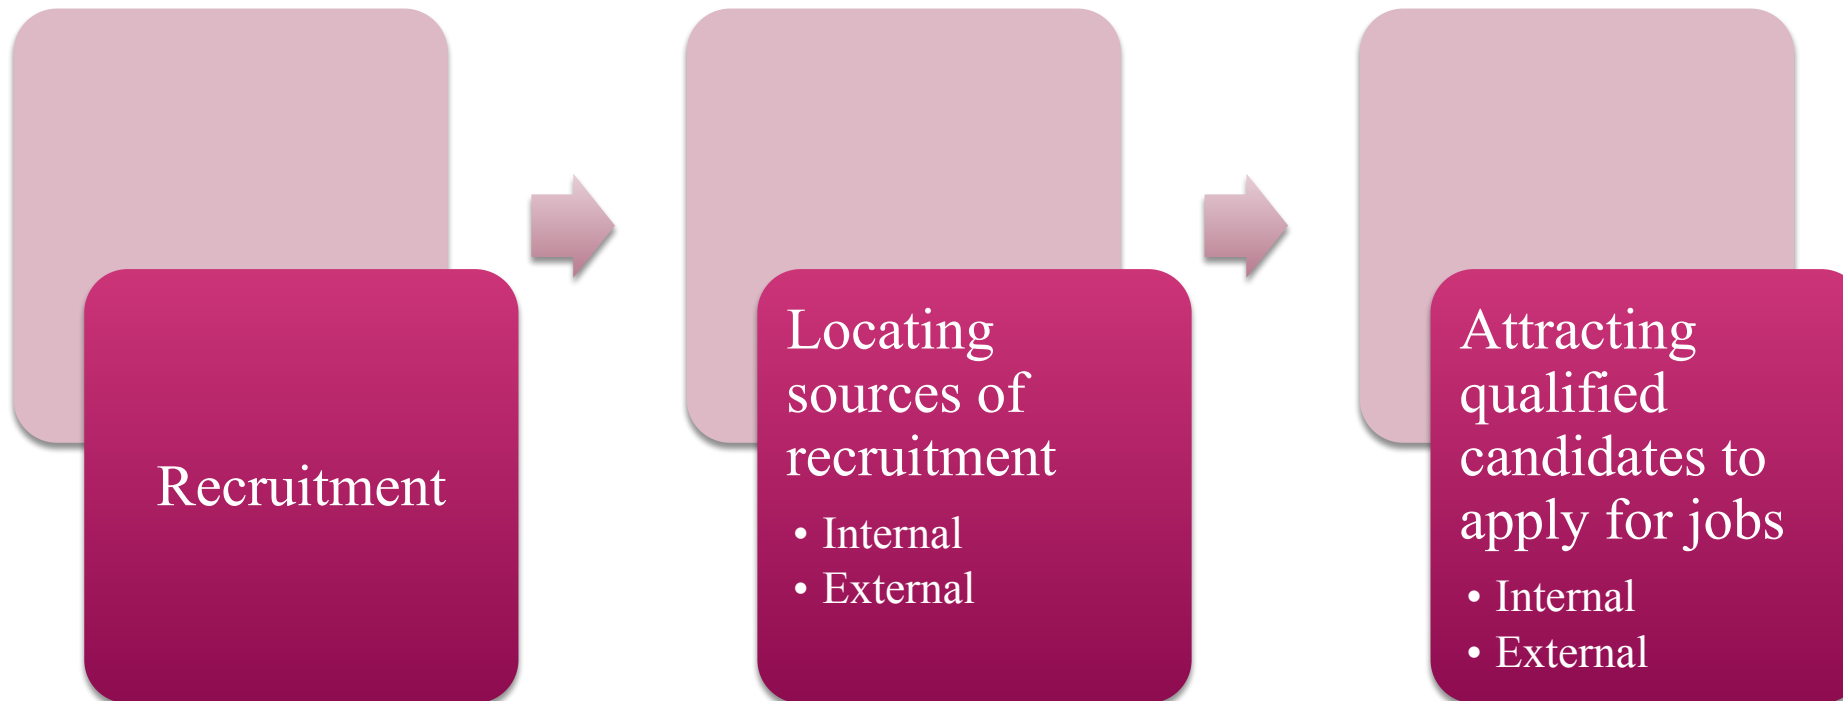

Based on the definitions.....

- ▶ It is the linking activity bringing together those with jobs and seeking jobs.
- ▶ Searching and motivating probable candidates to apply for the vacant post.
- ▶ Helping tool to choose the best available candidate.
- ▶ people of poor caliber drive out the good.
- ▶ Probably the most important function of HR management.

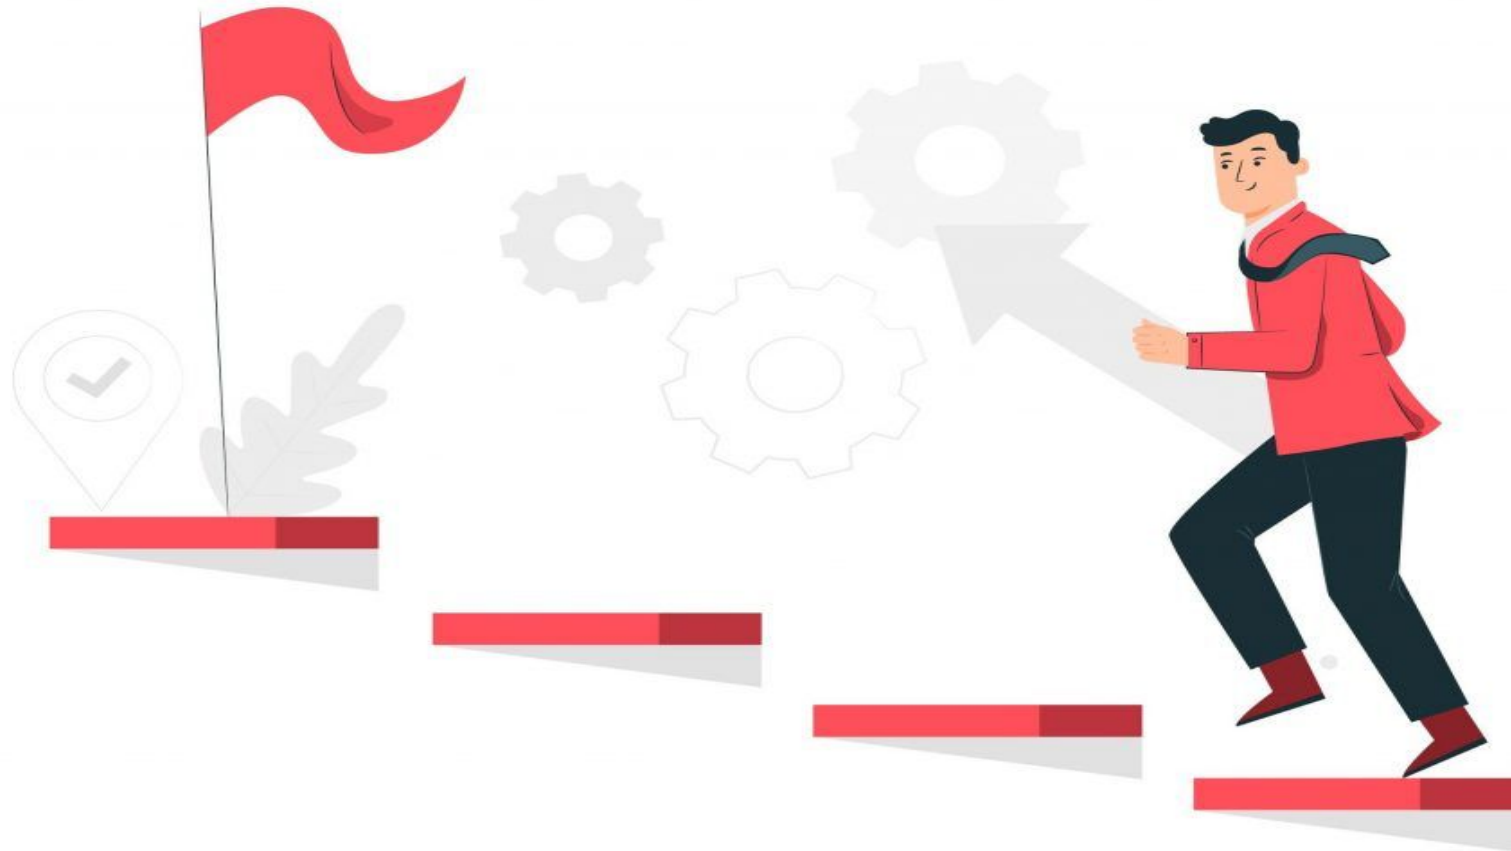

Factors affecting recruitment

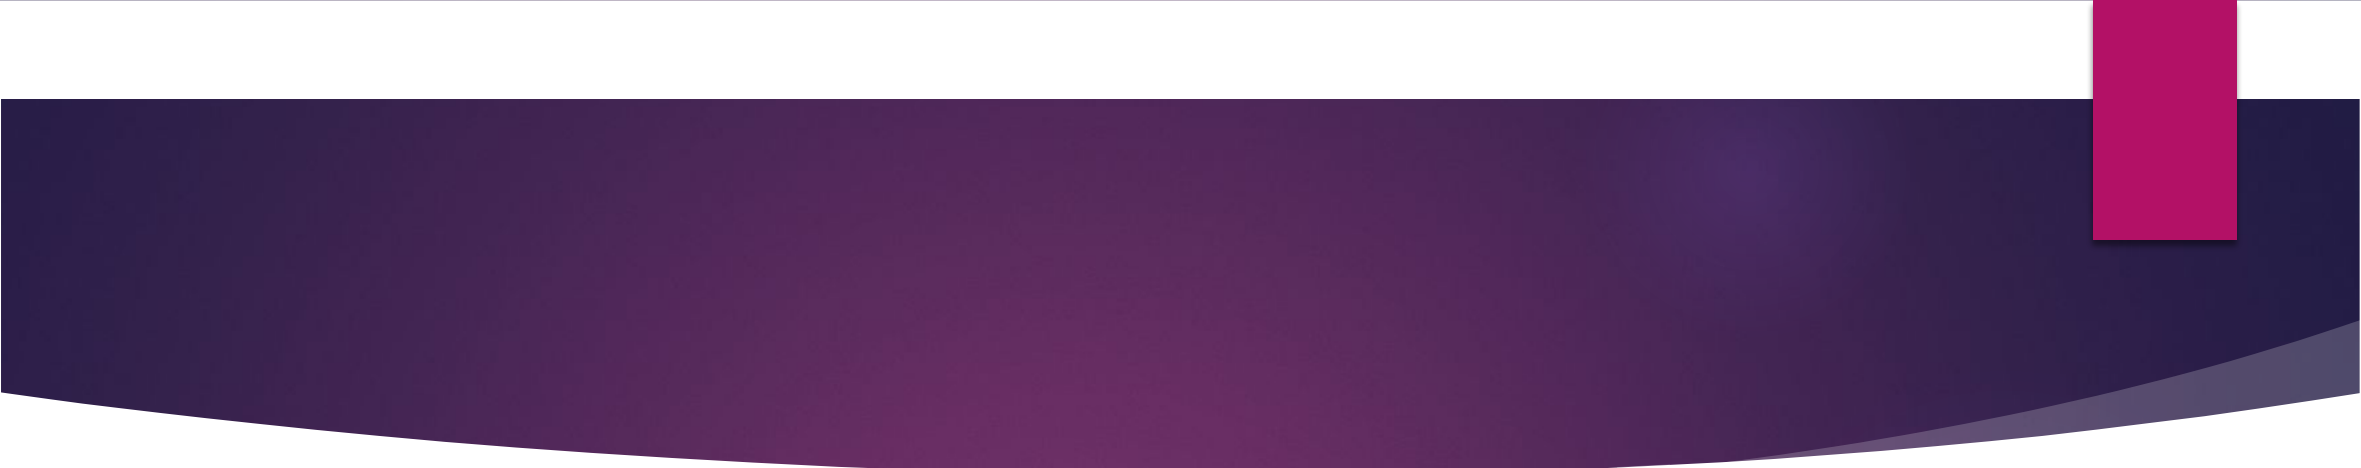

- ▶ The image of the organization
- ▶ The unattractive job/nature of the job
- ▶ Size of the organization
- ▶ Employees turnover
- ▶ Organizational growth
- ▶ Government influence
- ▶ Union requirements can also restrict recruiting source
- ▶ Incentives offered to the selected candidates
- ▶ Recruitment budget

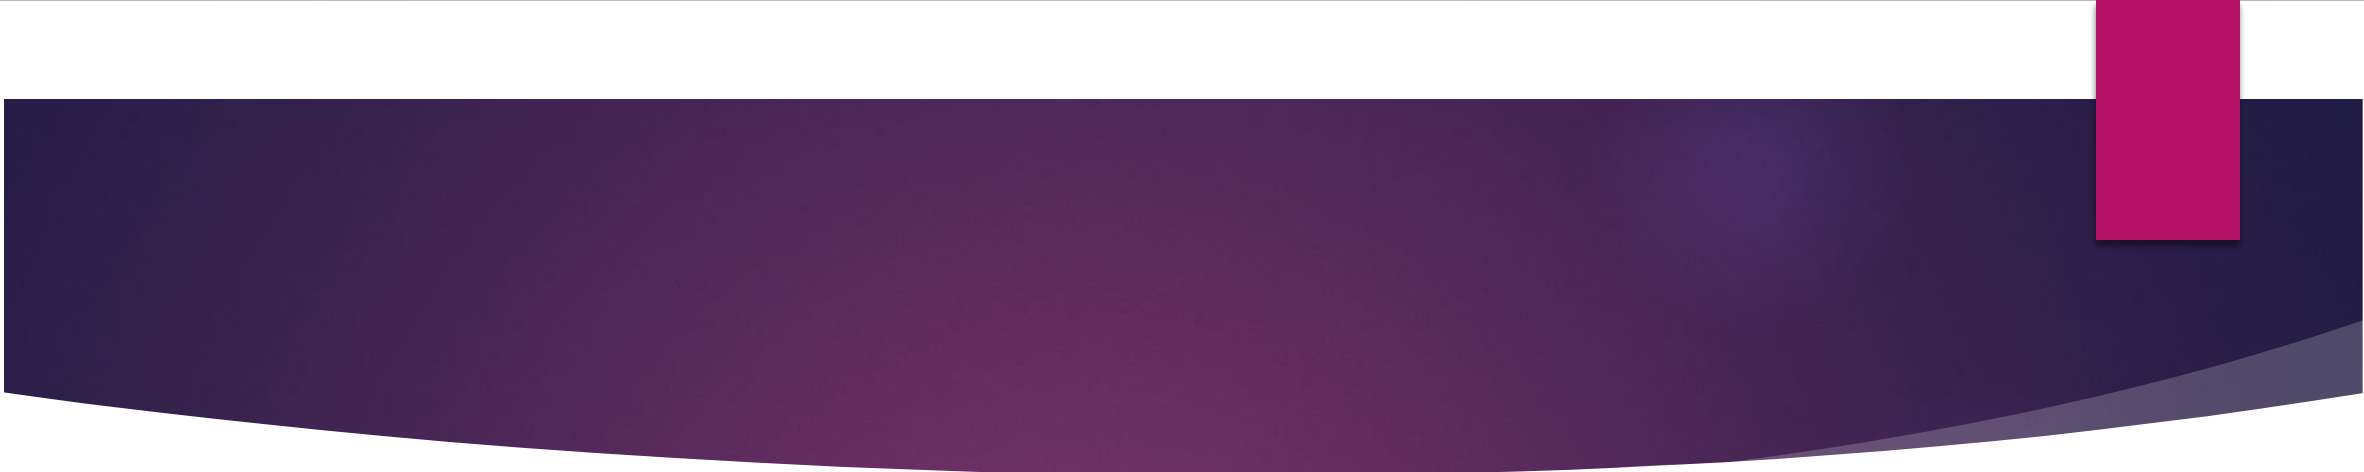

Recruitment process

Steps to Recruitment Process

-
- ▶ Analyze and Classify your Requirements
 - ▶ Formulate the Job Description and personal specification
 - ▶ Title
 - ▶ Duties and responsibilities
 - ▶ Qualification and skill set
 - ▶ Location
 - ▶ Compensation, benefits and perks
 - ▶ A Call-To-Action
 - ▶ Develop a Strategy
 - ▶ Screen and Shortlist the Best

▶ Interview the Shortlisted Candidates

- ▶ A few things you can do in this stage include:
 - ▶ Checking the references of the shortlisted candidate
 - ▶ Making the job offer

▶ Set up an Effective Onboarding Process

- ▶ Orientation
- ▶ Signing the contract letter

Sources and methods of recruitment

Source	Method
Internal (Inside the organization)	❖ Job posting ❖ Employees referrals ❖ Human resource inventory
External (Outside the organization)	❖ Advertisement ❖ Employment exchanges ❖ Educational Institution placement ❖ Employee referrals ❖ Walk-ins ❖ Trade unions ❖ Labour contractors

Advantages and disadvantages of internal recruiting

Internal Recruitment

Advantages

- ❖ Better selection
- ❖ Morale building
- ❖ Adaptability
- ❖ Management development
- ❖ Cost effective
- ❖ Promotes commitment

Disadvantages

- ❖ Limited choices
- ❖ Excessive In-breeding
- ❖ Favoritism
- ❖ Limited opportunities
- ❖ Seniority based

Advantages and disadvantages of external recruiting

External Recruitment

Advantages

- ❖ Qualitative human resources
- ❖ Organizational rejuvenation
- ❖ Environmental adaptation
- ❖ Balanced human resource mix
- ❖ Fairness in recruitment

Disadvantages

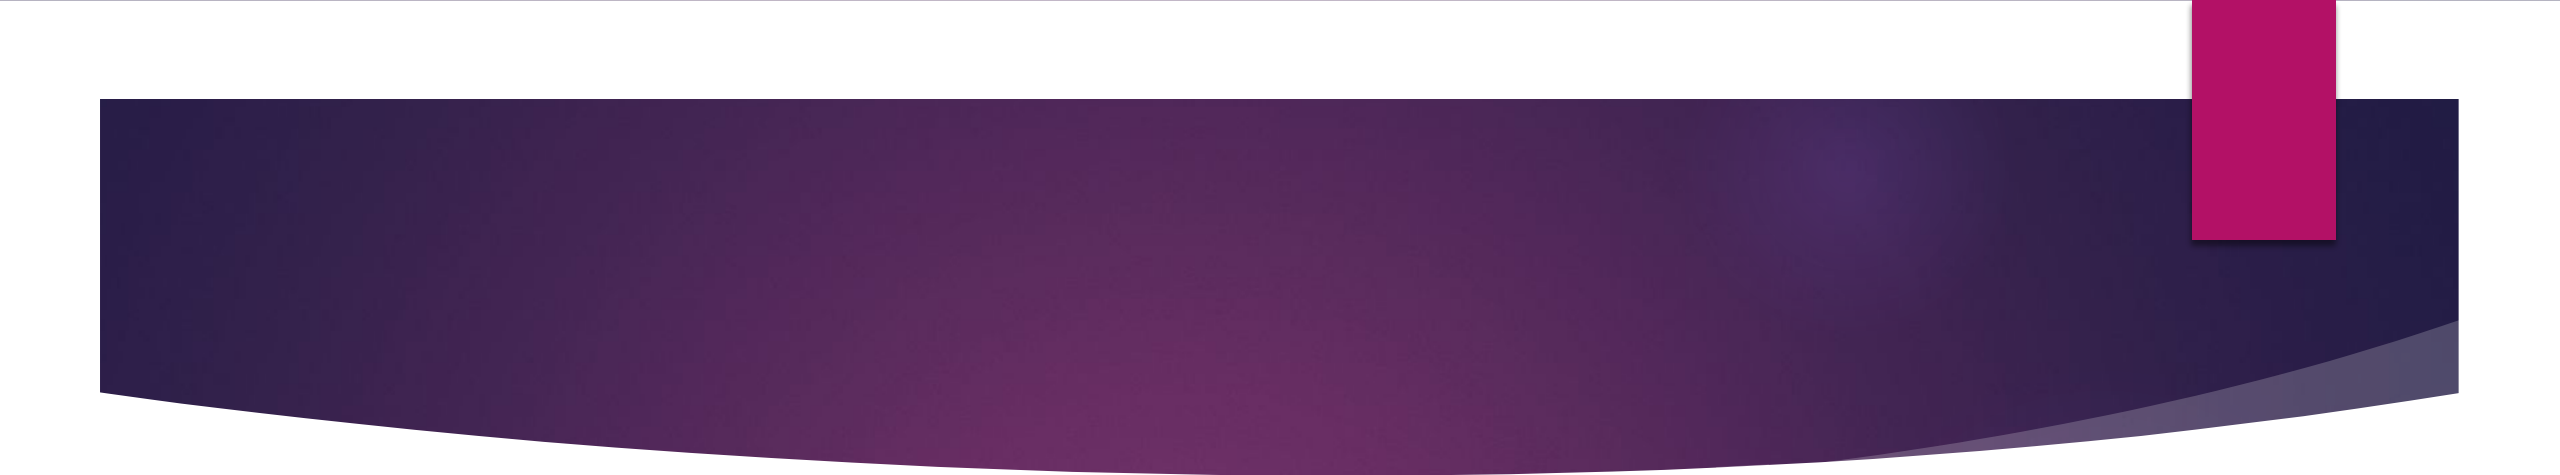

- ❖ High cost
- ❖ Poor employee moral
- ❖ Adaptability problems
- ❖ Wrong selection

Concept, Importance and process of selection

- ▶ No organization can function effectively without the right people.
- ▶ Selection is the process of choosing the most suitable candidate for a particular position from among the prospective applicants.
- ▶ The goal of the selection is to select the right person for the right job. It is concerned with the hiring as well as rejecting the applicants.

Definitions.....

- ▶ According to Wendell French
 - ▶ Selection is the process of choosing among people who apply for work with an organization.
- ▶ According to DeCenzo and Robbins
 - ▶ The primary purpose of selection activities is to predict which job application will be successful if hired.
- ▶ According to Werther and Davis
 - ▶ The selection process is a series of steps used to decide which recruits should be hired.

-
- ▶ According to Byars and Rue
 - ▶ Selection is the process of choosing from those available individuals who are most likely to perform successfully in a job.
 - ▶ Hence, the selection process can be defined as the process of selection and shortlisting of the right candidates with the necessary qualifications and skill set to fill the vacancies in an organization.
 - ▶ The selection process can varies from industry to industry, company to company and even amongst departments of the same company.
 - ▶ A good selection process is key in finding talent and forms the backbone for effective performance management.

Effective selection process requires

- ▶ Clearly spelled out job description and job specification for the vacant positions
- ▶ Sufficiently large pool of prospective applicants
- ▶ Series of steps through which applicants pass
- ▶ Selection standards to be used in selection.

Right selection creates

- ▶ Human capital
- ▶ Improve employer-employee relations
- ▶ Increase productivity and commitment of employees
- ▶ Environmental adaptation

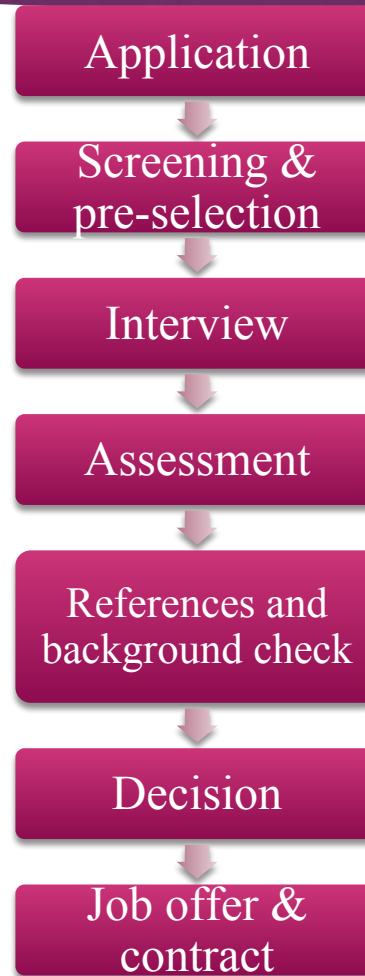

Poor selection leads to...

- ▶ Increased employee turnover
- ▶ Absenteeism
- ▶ Accidents
- ▶ Job dissatisfaction
- ▶ High costs of training
- ▶ Productivity losses

Advantages of Selection

- ▶ A good selection process offers the following advantages—
 - ▶ It is cost-effective and reduces a lot of time and effort.
 - ▶ It helps avoid any biasing while recruiting the right candidate.
 - ▶ It helps eliminate the candidates who are lacking in knowledge, ability, and proficiency.
 - ▶ It provides a guideline to evaluate the candidates further through strict verification and reference-checking.
 - ▶ It helps in comparing the different candidates in terms of their capabilities, knowledge, skills, experience, work attitude, etc.

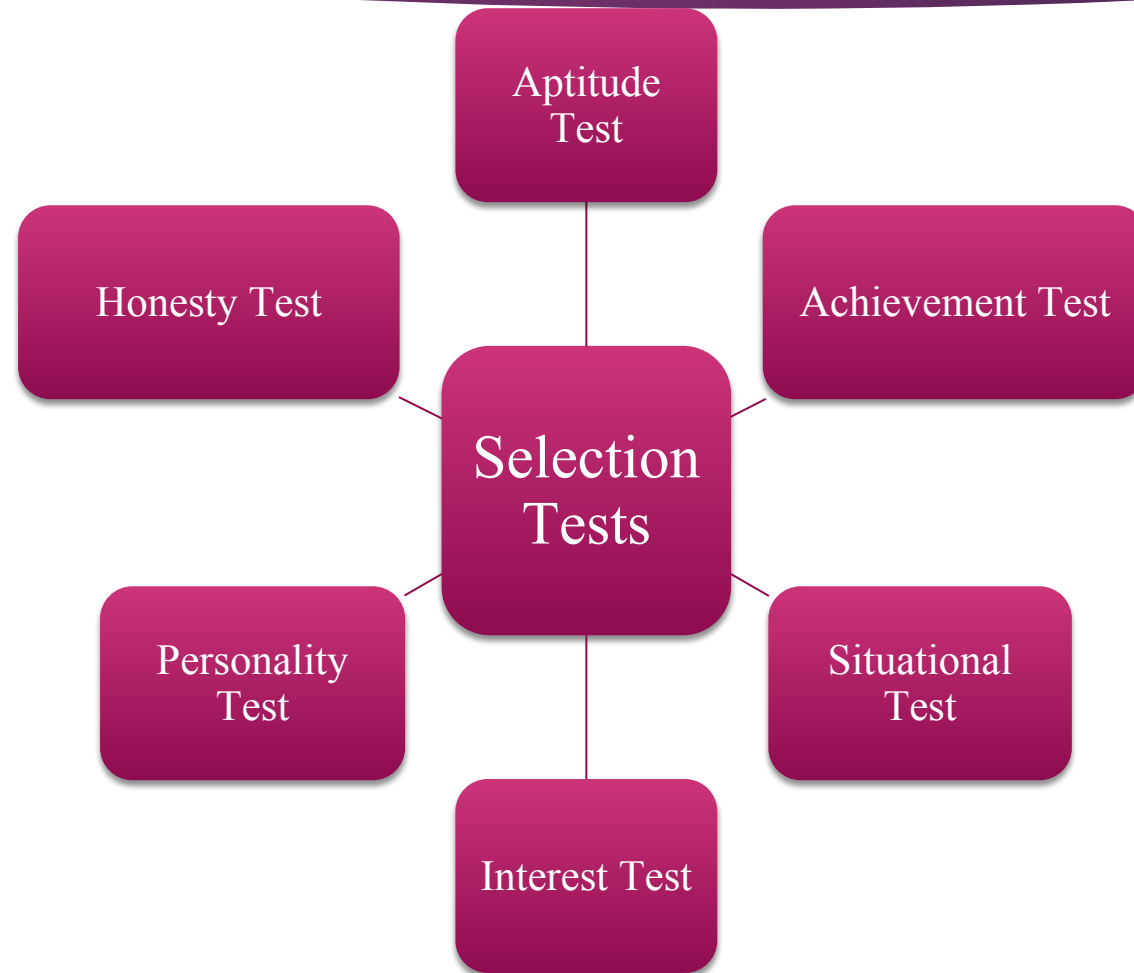

Process of selection

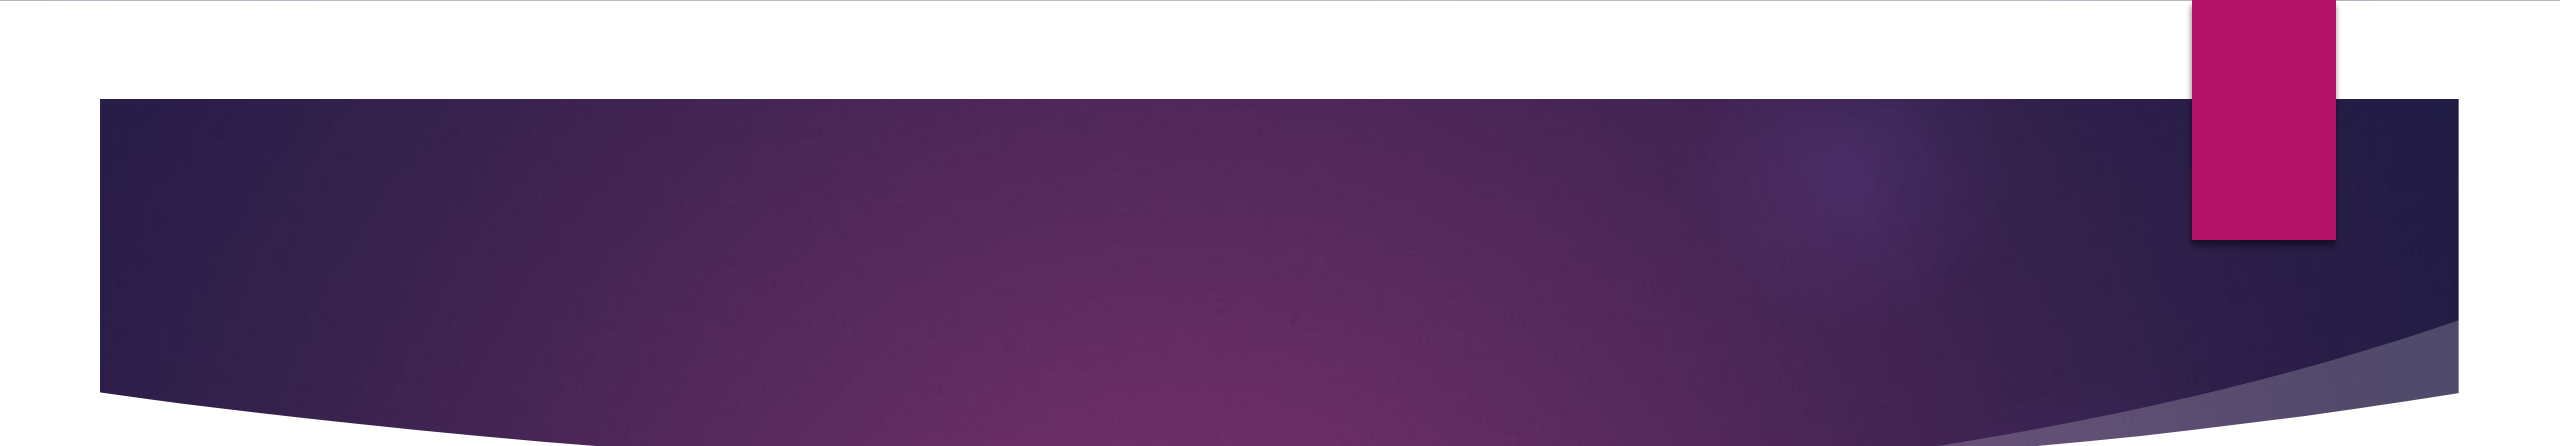

What is an employee testing?

- ▶ Employment testing is the practice of administering written, oral, or other tests as a means of determining the suitability or desirability of a job applicant.
- ▶ The premise is that if scores on a test correlate with job performance, then it is economically useful for the employer to select employees based on scores from that test.
- ▶ In simple language, test may be defined as a systematic procedure for forecasting the attitude or behavior of an individual on the basis of his/her relations to a particular situation, real or artificial.

Selection Tests

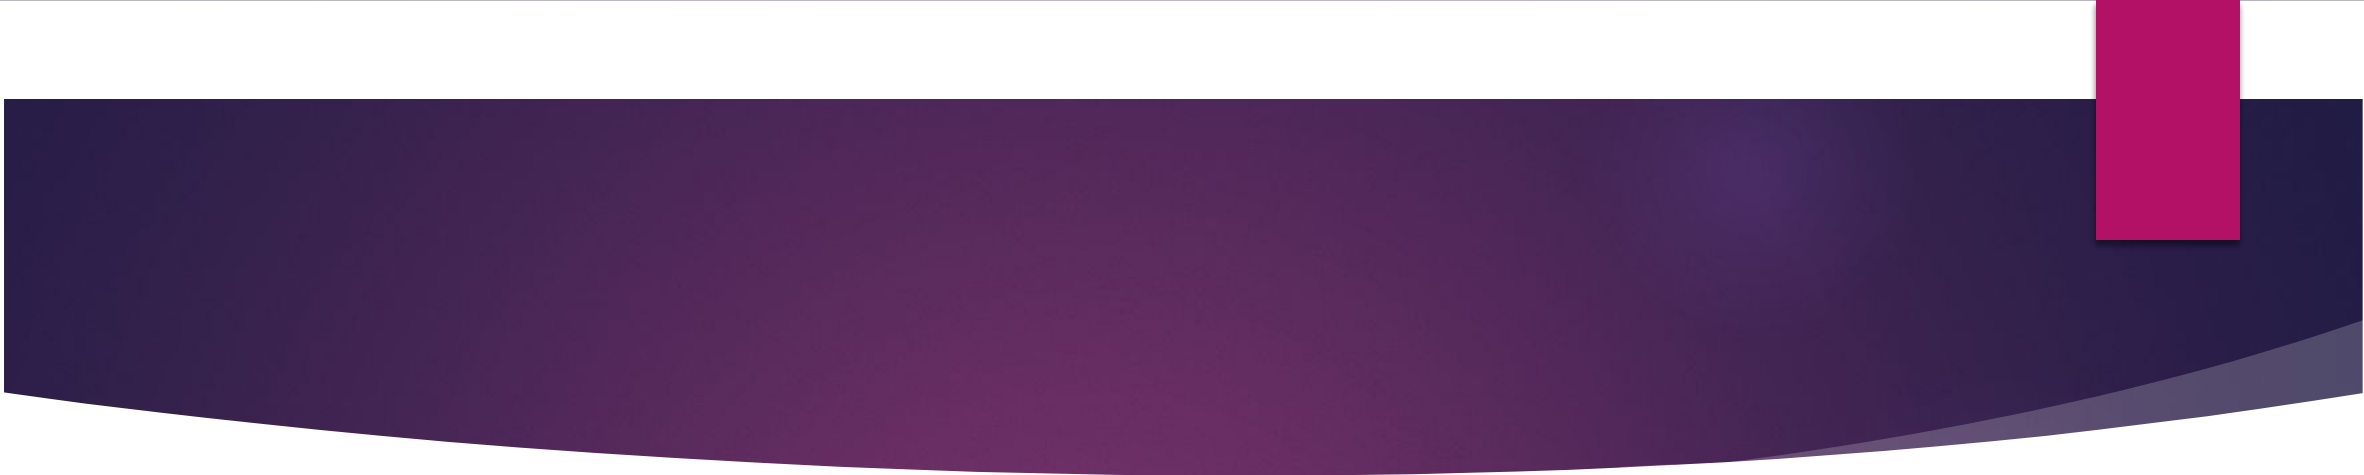

-
- ▶ Aptitude Test: Aptitude test measures the candidate's learning capacity. It can be
 - ▶ Intelligence Test: IQ test in terms of comprehension, reasoning, numbers, memory etc.
 - ▶ Mechanical test: Capacity related to mechanical matters.
 - ▶ Achievement test: The candidate's claim of theoretical and practical knowledge and skills.
 - ▶ Situational test: The candidate are asked to solve situational problems.
 - ▶ Interest test: Likes and dislikes test of the candidate
 - ▶ Personality test: personality dimension test of a candidate.
 - ▶ Honesty test: Honesty test of a candidate.

Why Careful Selection is Important

- ▶ Developing a strong HR selection process can help ensure that your company hires competent, loyal employees who help you to reach your business goals.
- ▶ The careful selection procedure is essential in helping cut costs.
- ▶ Good hires are good business

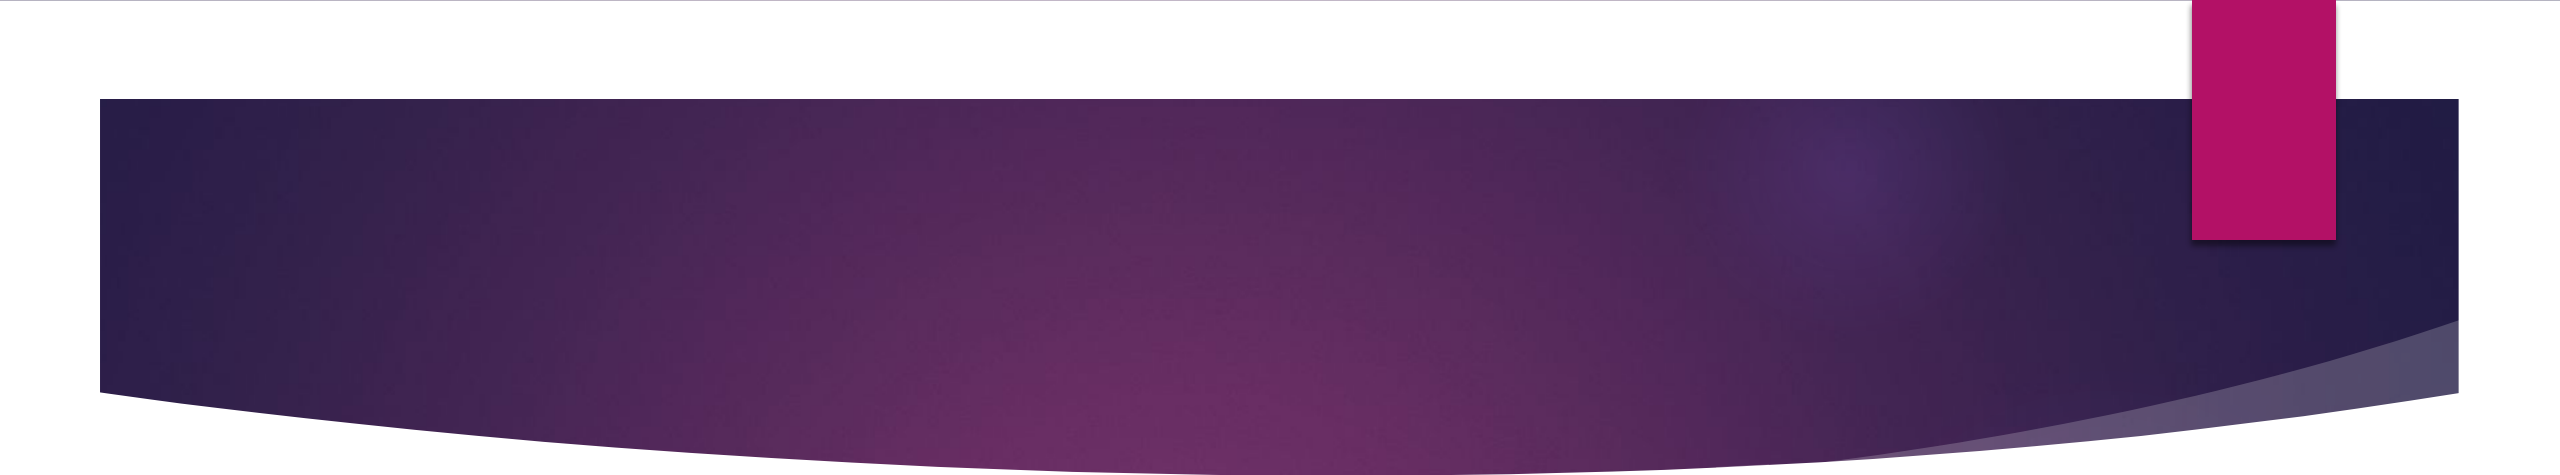

Legal Issues Need to Consider in Recruiting Process

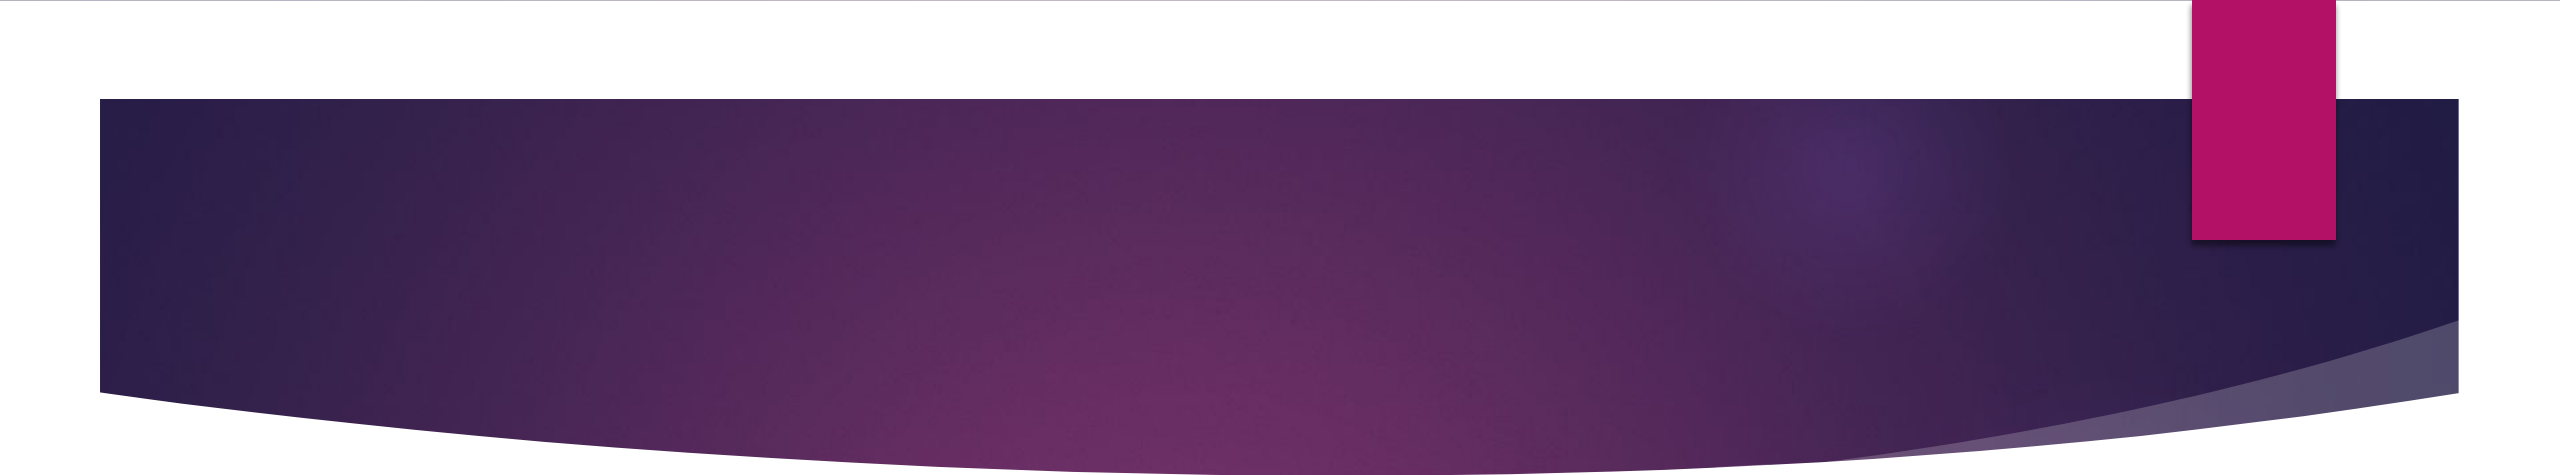

- ▶ When starting the recruiting process, it is important to be aware of certain legal issues in order to minimize risk. Job postings, interview questions, checking references and making job offers all need to be done in a way that meets legal requirements.
- ▶ Nondiscriminatory selection procedures
- ▶ You must not publish job postings or advertisements that give preference to:
 - ▶ Ethnicity/Race
 - ▶ Colour
 - ▶ Place of origin
 - ▶ Political belief
 - ▶ Religion

-
- ▶ Marital status
 - ▶ Family status
 - ▶ Physical or mental disability
 - ▶ Sex
 - ▶ Sexual orientation
 - ▶ Gender identity or expression
 - ▶ Age

Basic Testing Concepts

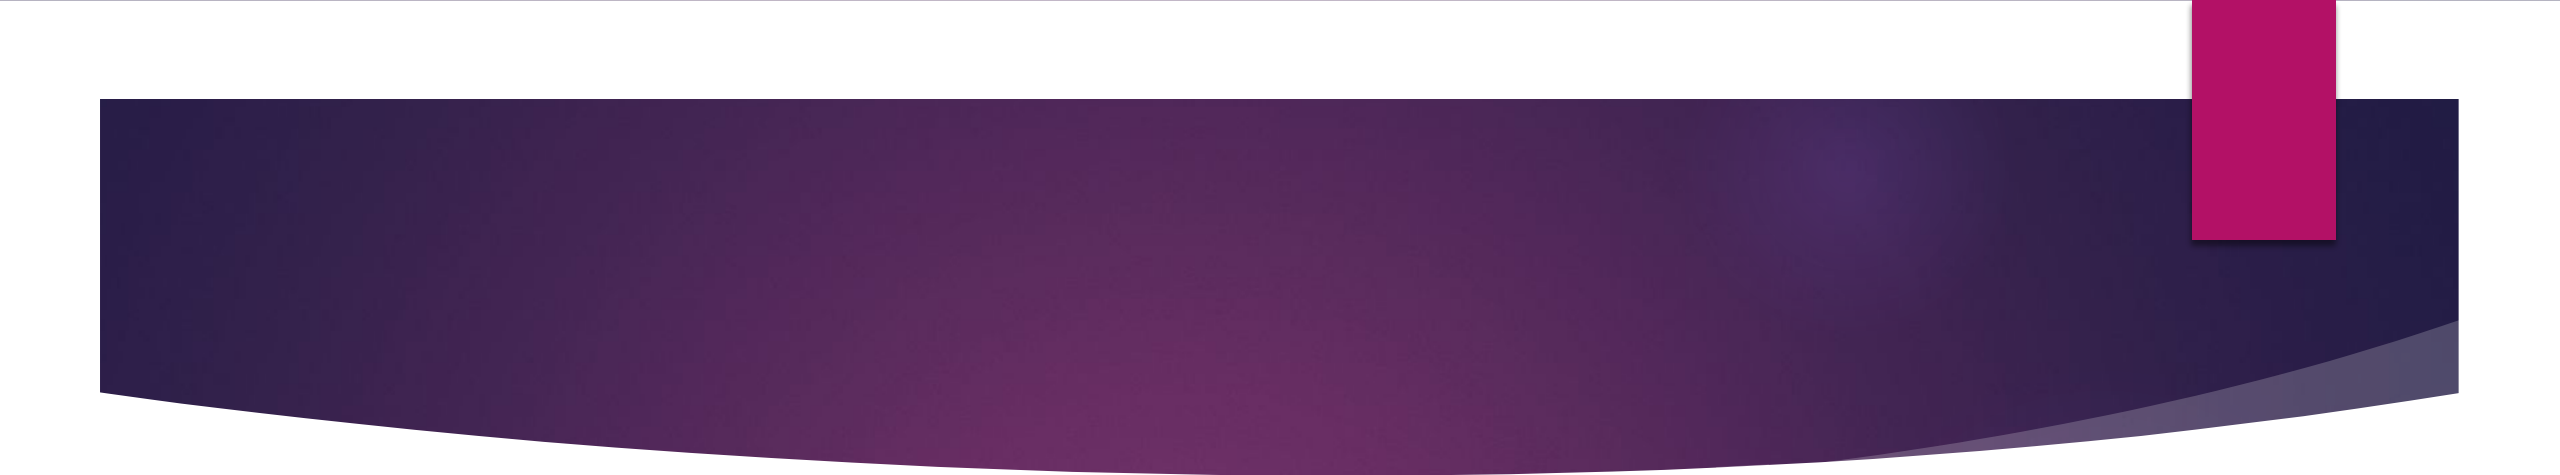

- ▶ Any test or screening tool has two important characteristics, reliability and validity.
- ▶ Reliability is a selection tool's first requirement and refers to its consistency: "A reliable test is one that yields consistent scores when a person takes two alternate forms of the test or when he or she takes the same test on two or more different occasions."
- ▶ If a person scores 90 on an intelligence test on a Monday and 130 when retested on Tuesday, you probably wouldn't have much faith in the test.
- ▶ You can measure reliability in several ways. One is to administer a test to a group one day, re-administer the same test several days later to the same group, and then correlate the first set of scores with the second (called test-retest reliability estimates).

-
- ▶ If the test is not reliable that could be physical conditions (quiet one day, noisy the next), differences in the test taker (healthy one day, sick the next), and differences in test administration (courteous one day, curt the next). Or the questions may do a poor job; for example, test one focuses more on Chapters 1 and 3, while test two focuses more on Chapters 2 and 4.
 - ▶ Validity
 - ▶ Validity tells you whether the test is measuring what you think it's supposed to be measuring.
 - ▶ Test validity answers the question “Does this test measure what it's supposed to measure?” Put another way, it refers to the correctness of the inferences that we can make based on the test.

-
- ▶ For example, if Jane's scores on mechanical comprehension tests are higher than Jim's, can we be sure that Jane possesses more mechanical comprehension than Jim?
 - ▶ A selection test must be valid since, without proof of validity, there is no logical or legally permissible reason to use it to screen job applicants.

What is an orientation?

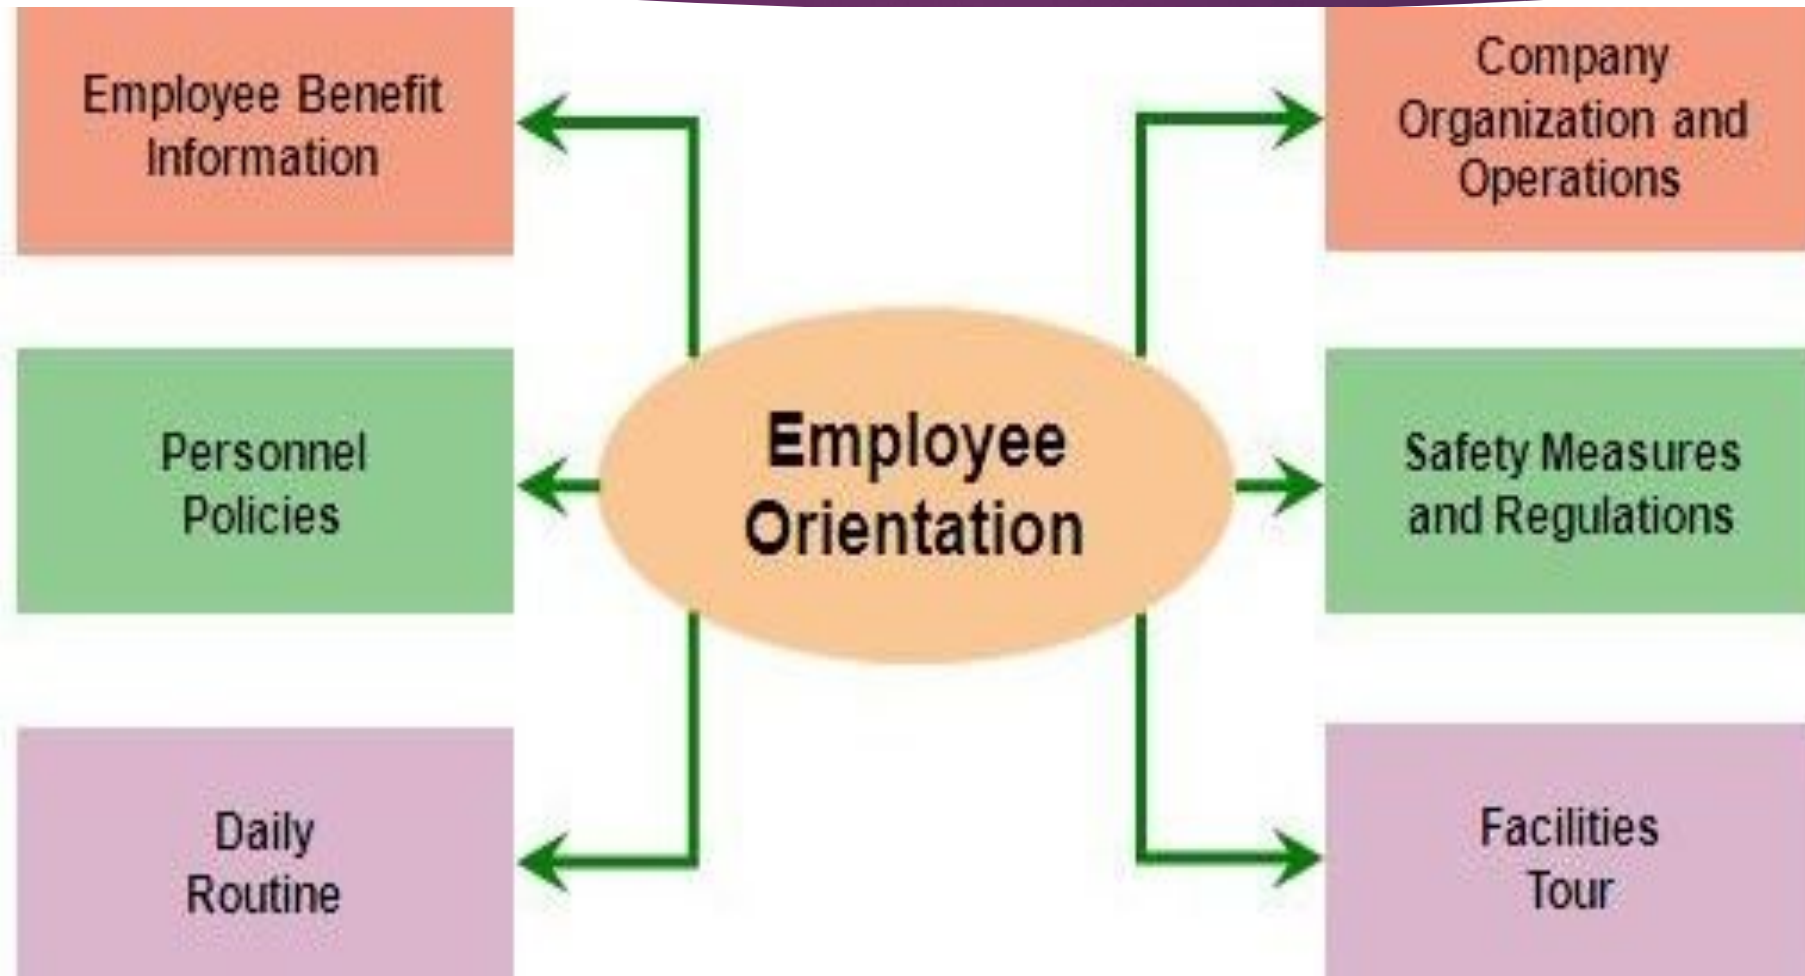

- ▶ The Orientation is a series of activities that give the new employees information to help them adapt to the institution and realize their responsibility towards it.
- ▶ It is often a program held at the introduction or ice-breaking stage. In business organizations, its purpose is to turn "you" (new employees) and "I" (the company) into a close-knit unit - "us".
- ▶ The newbies receive an overview regarding the institution- its history, products and services, organizational structure, and important rules, policies, and procedures that they need to know about.

-
- ▶ The employees may also need to complete necessary paperwork, have benefits explained, and get the job description reviewed.
 - ▶ Finally, a sound orientation program provides the opportunity for the employee to meet co-workers, spend time with the immediate supervisor, and become familiar with the new work environment.
 - ▶ The result: the new employee feels more secure and settled.
 - ▶ First developed in the U.S. during the early 1970s, orientation is gaining popularity. Several blue-chip companies around the world are orienting their new hires.

Purpose of Orientation

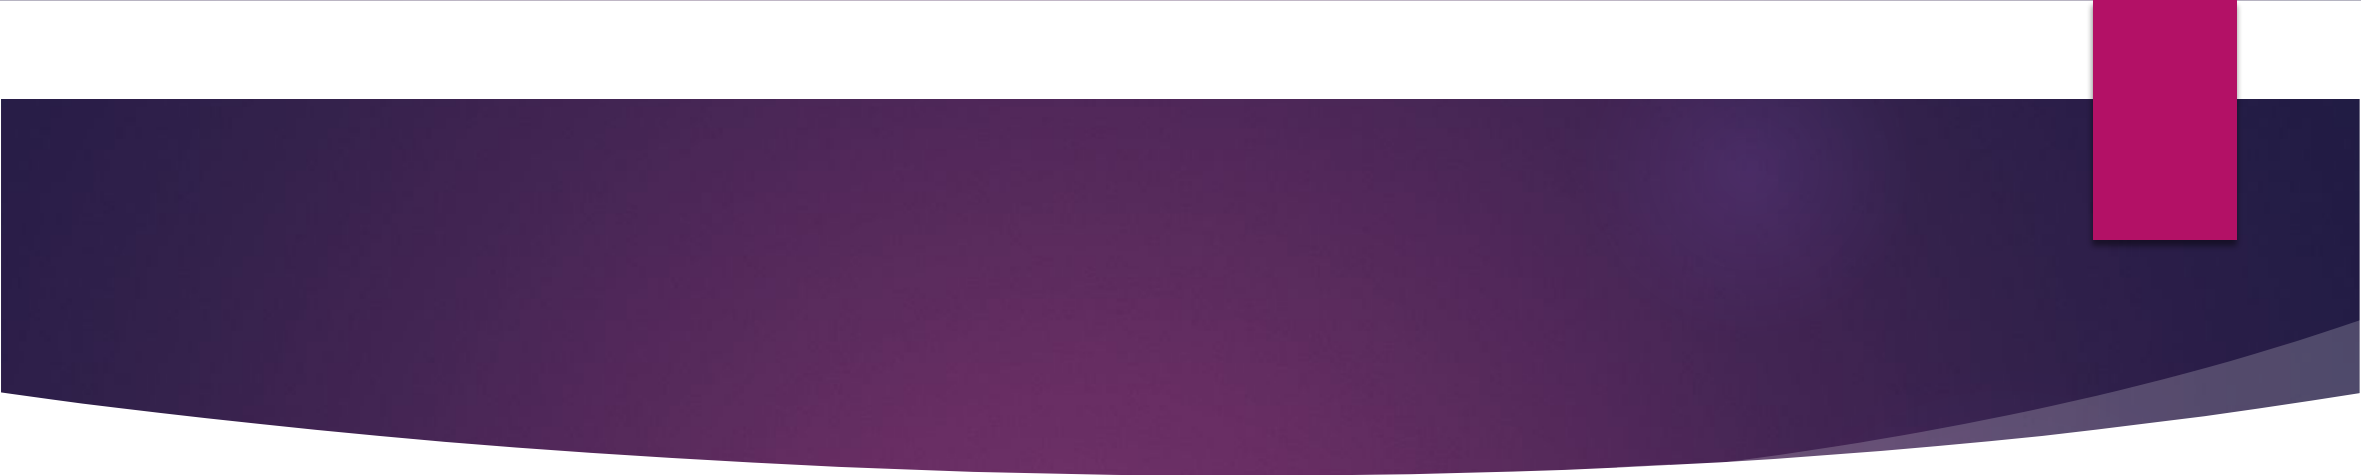

- ▶ Reduce the new employees anxiety.
- ▶ To make the new employees feel at home in the new environment.
- ▶ feel welcomed.
- ▶ Orientation seeks to expose new employees to all areas of the company.
- ▶ A good orientation program will create a favorable impression of the firm and its work.
- ▶ Employee orientation imperative to control attrition.

What are the Orientation Responsibilities?

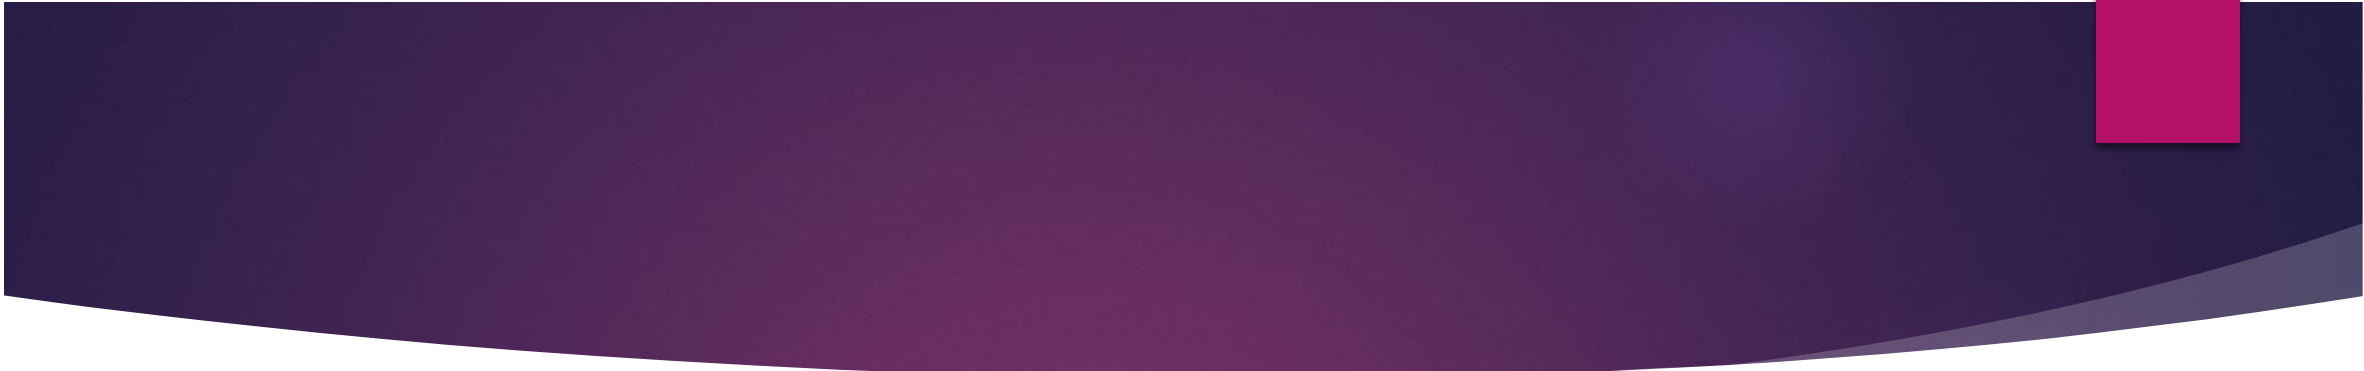

Stages of Orientation

- ▶ The Pre-Orientation Stage
- ▶ The Introduction to the Job-Site Stage
- ▶ The Follow-Up Orientation Stage

▶ The Pre-Orientation Stage

- ▶ Pre-orientation begins before the start date of your new employees and involves sending a package of information via email or postal service.
- ▶ This package typically includes documents such as an organizational chart, vision statement, mission statement, explanation of benefits, annual report and a checklist of what the actual orientation will cover.
- ▶ Sending a pre-orientation package increases the level of comfort when they arrive to work on their first day, and it allows them to prepare questions in advance.
- ▶ Some companies also include a small giveaway in the package, such as a company mug or T-shirt, which can help create a sense of camaraderie.

▶ The Introduction to the Job-Site Stage

- ▶ In this stage, new hires are given job or task-specific orientation, typically by their immediate supervisor.
- ▶ New employees learn details about their specific department or team, including information about breaks, absences, parking facilities, personal phone calls, email and internet policy, as well as the standards of performance for their work.
- ▶ The goal is to shrink the orientation to the actual tasks that the new employee will perform, with an understanding of the normal workday processes that will ensure maximum efficiency.

▶ The Follow-Up Orientation Stage

- ▶ The follow-up stage is so critical – it allows the manager to determine how well the new employee is adjusting to the job.
- ▶ Follow-up usually occurs on a weekly basis. Supervisors or managers meet with the new employee to discuss any issues and problems that have arisen.
- ▶ Supervisors should encourage new employees to ask questions and honestly express challenges they are facing.
- ▶ The follow-up orientation stage lets the manager determine how well your employee is performing assigned duties and also reveals how well the company has done in providing all the tools and help necessary for new hires to flourish.
- ▶ Of all the levels of orientation, this one is most critical to long-term success.

Organizational socialization

- ▶ Organizational socialization is the process by which people learn about, adjust to, and change the knowledge, skills, attitudes, expectations, and behaviors needed for a new or changing organizational role.
- ▶ Thus, organizational socialization focuses on organizational membership, which includes how people move from being outsiders to being insiders and how people move between organizational roles within and across organizations over time.
- ▶ It refers to process of making the new employees get acquainted to the new environment of the organization. This reduces the anxiety of the new hires and allows them to adjust with the other existing employees in the company.

Fundamental purposes of socialization.

- ▶ Employment Situation
- ▶ Rules and Policies
- ▶ Compensation and benefits
- ▶ Corporate Culture
- ▶ Working as a team
- ▶ Dealing with Change

Feldman's Model of Organizational Socialization

FELDMAN'S MODEL OF ORGANIZATIONAL SOCIALIZATION

Enter your sub headline here

